Volume III, No 12, December 2011

With the hot, dry summer we've had it's a good time to revise our list of recommended plants for our area. Would you each please take time to let Beth know what has survived, flourished, or died in your yards? We've had a good response from the public, following the request in our MG newspaper column, and it would be good to include our MGs input too. Please include your location, soil type, any soil improvements (compost, etc.) , watering frequency in addition to the plant names, whether the plant is in sun or shade, and any other pertinent information. This will be a good community service project and doesn't involve any shovel work! Thanks for your help.

STATE INFORMATION

State information is from the Texas Master Gardener website

Visit MGTV-Texas on YouTube for several on-line tutorials to assist Master Gardener volunteers in becoming familiar with some of the latest innovations in web communication technologies. That may sound a bit complicated, – but you will find that these tools are easy to learn/use and – most of them are free. These training modules will provide the basic information to get started – then let creativity be your guide.

The goal of MGTV Texas is to train MG volunteers in the use of these tools to assist in supporting County, Regional and State Extension educational programs. As the number of trained volunteers increases, we soon have a network of web communicators, sharing information on key programs and activities throughout Texas and beyond.
