HCMGA to Resume Library Series

By Lydia Holley

Henderson County Master Gardener Association's (HCMGA) popular monthly lecture series, Learn at the Library, will resume on Tuesday, June 8, 5:30 p.m., at the Clint W. Murchison Memorial Library, 121 S. Prairieville St., Athens. The series will be held on the second Tuesday of each month thereafter.

This educational series was put on hold due to Covid-19. Because of space limitations, social distancing will not be observed; masks are optional. Each month, lecturers will give a presentation on various gardening topics. The speaker scheduled for June 8 is Master Gardener Lydia Holley. Holley will present "Superheroes—Plants that Perform like Champs." This presentation will list various easy-to-grow plants for your East Texas garden.

Every area has its own plants which perform without specialized care. Holley has listed those that are most likely to grow successfully in East Texas' climate and soils. These plants are often characterized as "bullet-proof" plants. Easily-grown plants are a delight to have in the garden, whether you are new to the area, new to gardening, or are an experienced gardener. Holley will highlight a choice of perennials, annuals, shrubs, and vines to put in your garden.

Mark your calendars for the second Tuesday of each month, then join HCMGA to learn more about gardening and an opportunity to have your garden questions answered.
