

Easy to Grow Houseplants for Beginners

1. Aloe Vera - A medicinal plant that is ideal for growing in-doors. It prefers a lot of light with well-drained soil. A plus is if you have a burn, pinch off a leaf and coat your burn with the gooey gel from inside the leaf.

2. Spider Plant - Requires well-drained soil and indirect sunlight. Will produce "spiderette's" hanging down from the mother plant

3. Snake Plant or Mother-in-law Tongue - Very easy to grow, not requiring much light or water. This is a great plant as it removes toxins from the air.

4. Pothos - Devil's Ivy and Each can do well in low baskets or on a trellis.

- Marble Queen - light and look amazing in hanging

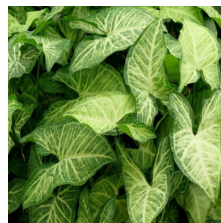

5. Hoya - this plant is one that takes very little water or sunlight to get it to bloom. It may take a couple of years before you see your first blooms but it will give you a nice show for years after with its waxy flowers. The leaves also will change color if it gets a little more light and looks great in a hanging basket.

6. Ponytail Palm - Is in the succulent family and will grow for years. It takes very little water, as it is use to growing in arid regions. I got mine when it was about 6" tall and now it is over 7 feet tall and probably about 40 years old.

7. Arrowhead Ivy - Another pruned it kept indoors keep it trimmed it will stay kind of light and likes well-

- vining plant that will have to be unless you train the long vines. If you compact and full. It does well in any drained soil.

8. ZZ Plant - This plant is almost indestructible. It can grow in drought conditions and any type of lighting and still look great. You see this plant in a lot of businesses, as it is so easy to maintain.

9. Closet Plant/Peace Lily - Another elegant looking plant that only need moderate water and light. Plant in well-drained soil.

10. Jade Plant - This is actually in the succulent family and can handle drought conditions and high and low amounts of sun. It also does well in humid areas.

Most all of these plants will be available at the Orange County Master Gardeners Annual Bloomin' Crazy Plant Fair on March 23, 2019 at Cormier Park. Watch our website <https://txmg.org/orange> for more information
